THE POWER OF ARBITRATION IN AN AGE OF CONFLICT

Welcome to Arbitrarily Speaking!

A world of words – writing and reasoning. The purpose of our newly revived e-periodical is to unpack the value, power and process of arbitration for our stakeholders, to provide a knowledge-share resource, and to invite membership, as well as subscription to our wide range of online courses.

The scholarly Rabbi Nachman of Breslov (1772-1811), a religious and philosophical thinker, once remarked, that 'arbitration is justice blended with charity'. We, too, see arbitration as a significant social resource, as an absolute good, and as a body of knowledge worth sharing.

We aim to make this platform as accessible and beneficial as possible, so once you have browsed through our first e-periodical we'd be delighted to receive your feedback and contributions. Click here to reach out to us.

FROM THE EDITOR'S PEN:

A world of words – writing and reasoning

Advocate Eric Dunn SC is the newly appointed editor of Arbitrarily Speaking. Acutely sensitive to the deductive and constitutive power of words, our editor will take us on an inspiring educational tour, from reasoning and award writing to case law developments and Uncle Oswald's compelling Q&A column.

UNCLE OSWALD'S Q&A FORUM

Yes, he's back! Our irascible retired arbitrator is sitting idle on his veranda, smoking his pipe, awaiting your questions on ADR practice. Many years ago, when he did his articles with Hugo de Groot, Voet and Partners, he faced the same ADR issues that you face now.

TOOLS OF THE TRADE

The International Bar Association's Toolkit for Award Writing* is an outstanding and accessible resource, and you can download the full PDF from our blog.

Published in its entirety with the kind permission of the International Bar Association's Arb40 Subcommittee, co-chaired by Ms Angeline Welsh and Ms Swee Yen Koh, and with special thanks to all contributing authors, including (but not limited to) Ms Noradèle Radjai (Partner, Lalive) and her colleagues at Lalive, Tino Schneider and Thomas Brown. The Toolkit is also available on the IBA Arbitration Committee web page.*
